SUMMARY

Highly motivated professional who DIDN'T DO ANYTHING. I didn't do anything wrong and yet everybody's looking at me like I crashed the build. I'm just a guy who wants to automate browsers. You can't skip me in the interview pipeline. It's illegal for you to skip me in the pipeline.

EXPERIENCE

Senior Browser Automation Engineer — TC Tuggers Inc.

Jan 2021 – Present

- Built a headless browser framework and people kept saying the architecture was "too complicated" but it's actually NOT complicated, it's SIMPLE, and they're the ones making it complicated by not understanding it
- Automated 14,000 browser sessions per hour. Everyone said it couldn't be done. They said "Tim, that's too many sessions." And I said you don't get to tell me how many sessions is too many
- Designed a stealth proxy rotation system. It's not like a WEIRD thing. A lot of people have proxy rotators. It's not just for ME. Go ahead, look it up
- Got removed from a standup meeting for "being disruptive." I wasn't being disruptive. I was presenting my screen and my desktop background was a picture of a hot dog and everyone started laughing and I said "you can't do that"

Web Scraping Consultant — Calico Cut Pants LLC

Mar 2018 – Dec 2020

- You have to GIVE to the codebase. You can't just pull from the repo and not push anything back. A lot of people don't push back and it's rude
- Reverse-engineered 47 anti-bot systems. Did it for free. Not even a thank you. I'm JOKING — I got paid. I got paid a normal amount. Don't write that I did it for free
- Built a Puppeteer-based testing suite that saved the company $2M. My boss told me to say it was a "team effort." He has no lines and no funny business

QA Intern — Spectrum Televisions & Tables

2016 – 2018

- Tested browsers on tables of various sizes. The tables are my idea. Nobody else was thinking about tables
- Filed 200+ bug reports. Every single one was marked "Won't Fix." I think they were scared of how many I found. That's a lot of bugs. You find that many bugs, people start asking questions

EDUCATION

University of Michigan — B.S. in Computer Science (Did NOT cheat. Completely unprompted, just want to be clear)

SKILLS

JavaScript, Python, Playwright, Puppeteer, Selenium, Docker, yelling "I DIDN'T DO ANYTHING" during code reviews, eating a big wet cigar during all-hands, tables
